MRS. ADDIE FARWELL CELEBRATES 80th BIRTHDAY

On Wednesday of this week Mrs. Addie R. Farwell observed her eightieth birthday anniversary. She is one of Bethel's active old ladies. In addition to her share of the housework that she insists on doing, she is constantly engaged in making rugs, quilts and other beautiful handicraft for members of her large family circle.

Associated with her daughter in the restaurant and home-cooking business, Mrs. Farwell is noted for the excellence of her pastry cooking.

Mrs. Farwell has six living children, 14 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. During the day many friends and neighbors called with gifts and best wishes.

The daughters, Mrs. Lena Wight and Mrs. Grace Buck of Bethel and Mrs. Marjorie Cummings of Hanover, with their families paid personal respects to their mother, and the absent children, Mrs. Cora Pillsbury of Oquossoc, and Wallace L. Farwell of Lowell, Mass., sent flowers, gifts and greetings in recognition of the day.

HENRY PRENTISS AUSTIN

By the death of Henry P. Austin last Friday Bethel lost a prominent and highly respected citizen. While engaged upon some emergency work at the Davis mill nearly two weeks previously he had suffered a severe heart attack and was brought home in a very serious condition. After a brave fight to regain his health he passed quietly away on the evening of Good Friday, March 22nd.

Henry Prentiss Austin was born at Pleasanton, Mich., on Oct. 14, 1878, the son of Rev. Henry A. and Carrie Maxim Austin. At the age of five he came to South Paris, his mother's native place, and was educated in the schools of that town.

He worked for eight years with C. L. Hathaway, glazier, of Norway and for a short time as electrician with the Norway and Paris Street Railway Co. In October, 1909, he came to Bethel as engineer and electrician for the Merrill Springer Co. and a little later turned on the electric lights of the new Bethel system. For four years he was superintendent and treasurer of the Bethel Light Co. and after that the town representative of the Central Maine Power Co.

These many years of public service had made Henry Austin well known to everybody in Bethel. No one among us knew all the people of Bethel and their homes and shops as he did. His little service truck was one of the busiest and best-known vehicles on our streets. A quiet, almost shy man, Mr. Austin had a delightful sense of humor and his bright smile was a tonic to his many friends. He was kindly and sympathetic toward all, full of generous understanding of everyone's problems and troubles. He was greatly interested in all public affairs and had been an active member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Austin was a member of the Bethel Congregational Church, having transferred his membership from the South Paris Church, with which the family had been long and closely affiliated, and where they have still many close friends. He was proud of his church descent as his father and four uncles had all been Congregational ministers, serving mostly in the Middle West.

Married in 1906 to Miss Ava Hubbard of Shelburne, N. H., Mr. and Mrs. Austin have two sons, Charles Maxwell, in the insurance business in Portland, and John Maynard, a freshman at the University of Maine. Two nephews, Henry and Donald Pulsifer, Mechanic Falls, and two nieces, Mrs. Harold Goss Mechanic Falls, and Doris Thurlow, South Paris, also mourn his death.

The funeral service was conducted on Sunday by Rev. Herbert T. Wallace from the late residence

The address was built up around the word "Integrity," which Dr.

Wallace said was the most fitting word with which to describe Henry Austin's life and character. In addition to relatives of the family a number of representatives of the Central Maine Power Co. from Lewiston and Norway, friends from South Paris and many local family friends and business associates attended the service.

The Congregational Ladies will have a food sale at D. Grover Brooks' store Saturday, March 30, at 2 p.m.

Wallace Clark was given a supper party at his home Tuesday evening in honor of his birthday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lang Clark, Mrs. Vinne May, Albert Silver, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Davis of Bethel, and Mrs. Hattie Abbott and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Abbott of Rumford.

Constance Doyen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Doyen, received a broken collar bone and scratches

Wednesday noon on her way home from the primary school. The accident happened near Brooks' store when a group of children running down the hill failed to see a car driven by Fred Douglass which was turning the corner from Main Street, and hidden from view by a parked car. Mr. Douglass drove his car into a snow bank to avoid hitting the children but the little girl was hit by the rear fender. Deputy Sheriff Frank Hunt investigated the accident and said that Mr. Douglass was blameless.

MARCH SNOW AND BLOW SLOWS ROAD TRAVEL

After a long winter which featured cold weather rather than heavy snowfalls and blocked roads, the overdue combination of snow and wind came Friday and made up for lost time. By that night highway traffic was laboring under great difficulties, although main routes were kept open with little interruption except on Route 26 in Grafton. The Upton-Bethel stage was unable to make through trips Monday and Tuesday, and local schools were closed Monday as the conveyance routes were not open. The snowfall measured about 18 inches.

BETHEL AND VICINITY

Mrs. Philip Daye is confined to her home by illness.

Miss Edna Young is spending several days in Portland.

Carl Eames is spending some time with his mother, Mrs. J. B. Chapman.

Mrs. Neil P. Swain is ill at the home of her son, Edwin Swain, at Skillington.

Mrs. George Westleigh, with her son Rodney, has returned to her home in West Bethel.

Miss Ethel Jodrey of Portland was the week-end guest of her sister, Miss Ruby Jodrey.

Mrs. Eugenia Leonard left last Thursday to spend the Easter vacation at her home in Texas.

The Gould freshmen defeated the Grammar School team in basketball Friday afternoon, 40 to 32.

Miss June Little returned to Boston Tuesday after a ten days' visit at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Tucker.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Fossett and son Paul are spending the week with Mr. Fossett's parents at Penquid.

Barbara Coolidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Coolidge, is very ill at the C. M. G. Hospital, Lewiston.

Some of the principal sidewalks were shoveled out last week, but they were soon rendered useless by the storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Poole of St. Johnsbury, Vt., were guests Sunday of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Poole.

Mr. and Mrs. Zenas Merrill Jr. and son Zenas 3rd of Harrisville, R. I., were Easter Sunday guests of his father, Zenas Merrill.

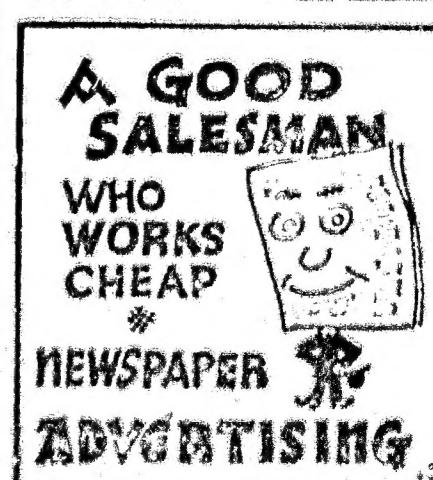

Mrs. Tena Thurston, Mrs. Ralph Young, Mrs. Lucion Littlehale, Mrs. Alice Staples, and driver, Carl Eames, returned last week after spending several weeks in Florida.

Miss Madeline Hall accompanied Mrs. Lena Wight and William Wight to Hartford, Conn., Sunday to visit Miss Kathleen Wight and Miss Katherine Loomis in Clavarack, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Earlyn Wheeler of Camden visited Mr. Wheeler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wheeler, several days last week. Edward Wheeler returned with them for a visit.

Mrs. Mary Ladd, Miss Eva Ladd, Mrs. Robert Lord, Mrs. Norman Gardner and Mrs. Irvin French attended the Paul Chafee meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Staples, Tanners, today.

"Cat Alley," the much travelled short cut between the post office and Farwell and Wight's is closed this week. A barrier was placed Monday on the Church Street entrance by Deputy Sheriff Hunt, who posted a notice signed by Ernest Blisbee, owner of the corner building occupied by the Burns Clover Farm store. This procedure is necessary every 20 years to retain ownership of the land commonly used by the public. It was last posted by H. N. Upton who owned the property in 1920.

STATE OF MAINE

Oxford, ss.
TO THE HONORABLE JUSTICES OF THE SUPERIOR COURT to be held at PARIS, within and for the said County of Oxford, on the second Tuesday of June, A. D., 1940.
RESPECTFULLY REPRESENTS,

Ann De Roche resident at Rumford in the County of Oxford and State of Maine that she was lawfully married to John De Roche, formerly of said Rumford, but whose present residence is unknown, at Rumford in the County of Oxford and State of Maine on the 26th day of June, A. D., 1922, by Rev. Father Bolvin of said Rumford, duly authorized to solemnize marriages therein; that the Libellant and Libellee cohabited in this State after their said marriage; that the Libellant resided in this State when the cause of divorce accrued as hereinafter set forth; that the Libellee is not now a resident of this State; that the Libellant has ever been faithful to her marriage obligations, but that the said Libellee has been unmindful of the same; that there is no collusion between your Libellant and the said Libellee to obtain a divorce; that on the 8th day of December, A. D., 1922, said Libellee utterly deserted your Libellant without reasonable cause and has continued said desertion for three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel; that said Libellee has been guilty of extreme cruelty toward your said Libellant; that the said Libellee has been guilty of cruel and abusive treatment toward your said Libellant, as follows:

WHEREFORE, your Libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and the said Libellee may be decreed; and your Libellant further alleges that the residence of said Libellee is unknown to your Libellant and cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence.

Dated at Rumford, Maine this 8th day of February, A. D., 1940.

Ann De Roche Libellant

STATE OF MAINE

Oxford, ss.

Upon the foregoing Libel, ORDERED, That the Libellant give notice to the said John De Roche to appear before the Justice of our Superior Court, to be held on March 4, A. D. 1940, by publishing an attested copy of said libel, and this order thereon, three weeks successively in The Bethel Oxford County Citizen, newspaper printed in Bethel, in our County of Oxford, the last publication to be thirty days at least prior to said second Tuesday of June, 1940, that he may then and there in our said Court appear and show cause, if any he have, why the prayer of said Libellant should not be granted.

Albert Belliveau

Justice of the Superior Court.
A true copy of the libel and order of court thereon.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Felt had as guests over the week-end their son Lester and Miss Vera Morgan of Corinth, and their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Strout.

Mr. and Mrs. Lenwood Andrews are at Malden, Mass. for a few days called there by the illness of her father, Walter Woods.

Edwin Perham is confined to the house with an injured toe.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Davis were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bryant and daughter June of Bryant Pond and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis.

South Woodstock received its largest fall of snow for the winter on Friday, accompanied by cold and high winds over the week-end. The fall of snow was estimated at 14 to 18 inches.

Mrs. Alva Hendrickson and daughter, Mrs. George Waterhouse, are attending Farm and Home Week at Orono this week.

Miss Alida Verrill, a senior at Gould Academy, is spending the Easter recess with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Alton Verrill.

Miss Beulah Bisbee of Mechanic Falls spent several days the past week with her grandmother, Mrs. Angie Robbins.

The meeting of the Willing Workers that was to have been held with Mrs. Inez Emery at Trap Corner, has been postponed from Wednesday until April 10, owing to the severe cold and illness in some of the members' families.

Funeral services for George Rose were held at I. W. Andrews funeral home on Sunday at 2 o'clock.

Friends of Mrs. Thelma Abbott of North Paris are glad to know that she has returned from Springfield, Mass., after having an operation performed on her hand. It is expected that after a short time she will be able to use the hand and partial use of her arm, at least.

NEWRY FARM BUREAU

The Farm Bureau ladies met with Mrs. Grace Hubert Friday with 11 members, one guest and one child present. The subject of this meeting was Shopping for Your Money's Worth, with Miss Callaghan leader.

The forenoon was taken up with discussions on raising your family's food supply and the prices received and paid the farmers from 1930-1939. After dinner was served, a business meeting was held, followed by an explanation on the cuts and prices of meat and how to cook them by Miss Callaghan.

An old-fashioned dance was decided on by the group, to be held at her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anna K. Emery.

Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes officiated at the funeral of Fred DaVee at Buckfield Sunday.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Daisy Morton April 24, when Mrs. Theresa Anderson of the State Nursing Association will give two health talks.

GEORGE H. ROWE

George Herbert Rowe of Redding died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Richardson, Thursday forenoon. He had gone there the previous week to be cared for as he was blind and in failing health.

Mr. Rowe was the son of Barnabas and Miriam Abbott Rowe and was born in Redding May 6, 1857. He married Josephine Benson, who died more than 20 years ago.

Besides the daughter mentioned, he is survived by two sons, Merton Rowe of Redding and H. E. Rowe of Farmington; 10 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from the I. W. Hayes & Son funeral home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Alton Verrill officiating. The bearers were George Redding, Percy Redding, Welsford Lapham, Edward Cole.

The remains were entombed at Wayside Cemetery, West Paris. Burial will be at Redding in the spring.

CHARLES H. BATES

Charles H. Bates died Monday, March 17, at Zephyrhills, Florida, where he and Mrs. Bates were spending the winter.

Mr. Bates had been in poor health for some time but his final illness was of short duration.

The remains were brought to West Paris, accompanied by Mrs. Bates, and funeral services were held at the Universalist Church Saturday afternoon at 4:30. Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes officiated. The bearers were Leon S. Hadley, Lester H. Penley, Edwin J. Mann, Elmer Ingalls, Percy C. Mayhew, Lorenzo Cole. Entombment was at Wayside Cemetery, West Paris.

Mr. Bates was united in marriage with Miss Jennie Campbell of New Haven, Conn.

He was a carpenter and worked at his occupation as long as health permitted.

He had resided in West Paris for many years, except for a Rebekah meeting in South Paris Intervals spent at Zephyrhills, Fla.

Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes officiated at the funeral of Fred DaVee at Buckfield Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Penley spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Penley.

Mrs. Emma Smith is visiting relatives in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Curtis were in Norway Monday on business.

The worst snow storm of the season visited West Paris Friday, followed by high wind and cold weather.

The ten donkeys, in their moving van from Oklahoma, were in town Friday night and played basketball at the gym. They were accompanied by two men who evidently had them well trained. Saturday they went to Berlin, N. H.

The most severe storm here for the winter started with a steady snowfall last Friday morning, keeping steadily at it all day, with a strong north wind until Tuesday.

Snow plows have kept busy day and night and are not all around yet. In some places a shoveling crew was necessary to keep the tractor going, the drifts being 12 feet high in places. The men who worked in that strong wind, ice and snow believe it was the worst storm in 24 or 30 years.

Emily Tuell with her dog team, two Alaskan huskies and one English shepherd-police hitched up abreast, came over from West Sumner Monday.

There will be a W. C. T. U. fifth Sunday union service next Sunday evening in the chapel. Mrs. H. A. Tibby will speak. There will be special music with piano and orchestra parts.

Levi Smith went Tuesday evening to care for elderly Dexter Pevey of Bryant Pond, who is very ill.

The Fashion Frock Of The WeekChecks Are Approved for Spring

As worn in Hollywood by

GLORIA STUART

Popular Screen Actress

Fashion flash from Paris—"Checks are important." This week's style is in full accord with this style decree and has that adorable "Parisian chic" in every line. The details give this frock equal prominence with the check patterned fabric. For instance, the double collar, one of the dress material and one of fresh white bengaline with a small fabric bow. The bengaline is also used on each cuff. There's a row of pearl buttons to the waist. Pleats, from the yoke line to the waist and in the skirt, give one a lovely, graceful figure. Black and white is the favored pattern. It also makes up well in a green and white. Zipper fastener keeps the waistline snugly fitted as fashion demands today. It is an exquisitely simple style yet it has that instantly recognized touch of smartness every well dressed woman demands.

Doris of Mexico High School were guests last week of their aunt, Mrs. Richard Blake.

On account of the storm the stage was unable to make the regular trips from Upton to Bethel Monday and Tuesday. L. E. Wight took the mail from Newry to Bethel and brought mail back. He met Ray Thompson in Grafton Notch, where mail was taken across the drifts to the waiting stage.

A Republican caucus was held at the home of E. G. Warren Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Wight attended the senior play at Gould Academy Wednesday night of last week.

UPTON

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Captain Carl Norwood has been born native English to the Kadur River district. In his youth he was a soldier of fortune, and now he is a man of means. He is married to Mrs. O'Leary, soldier of fortune. Norwood's job is to survey the district to determine whether valuable secret diamond mine belongs to the temple priest or to the ruler, the Maharajah of Kadur.

CHAPTER II—Norwood calls on the British Residency to pay his initial respects. On his way he catches a glimpse of two women in a palace carriage, one young and beautiful. The other woman he believes to be the Maharanee of Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is an American girl named Lynn Harding, who with her aunt, Mrs. Deborah Harding, is a guest at the palace.

CHAPTER III—Mrs. Harding and Lynn, her niece, are guests at the Maharajah's palace. On a sightseeing tour Mrs. Harding sprains an ankle, and sends a message to Captain Norwood. Rundhia, a commoner, comes to the rescue and takes her back to the palace where she meets Lynn.

CHAPTER IV—At a banquet that night in the palace, attended by Captain Norwood, Lynn is unwell. She goes to see the native doctor's wife, and becomes violently ill. She is placed in bed and arrangements are made for Lynn to move out of the quarters with her aunt and stay with the Maharajah.

CHAPTER V—That evening Prince Rundhia attempts to make love to Lynn. She is unwilling to listen to him, and at the crucial moment Norwood appears on the scene, much to Rundhia's disgust. Norwood sees her home.

CHAPTER VI—O'Leary has located the secret entrance to the diamond mine which is being worked by the temple priests. He takes Norwood to the mine, where they narrowly averted a snake attack. Later Norwood visits the Brahmin priests, one of whom slyly slips a packet of diamonds in his pocket, unknown to Norwood. They are intended as a bribe.

CHAPTER VII—While Norwood is talking to Lynn the diamonds fall from his pocket. She notices them, and sees that he is surprised. Later, when Rundhia tries to make love to her, she remembers the diamonds in order to divert his mind. She realizes it was a mistake.

CHAPTER VIII—Rundhia, though charmed by Lynn's attitude, is elated to hear of the diamonds. He goes immediately to the British Residency, accusing Norwood of taking a bribe. He also reveals that Lynn told him.

CHAPTER IX

The Maharajah's maid, who changed Lynn's frock, was one of those who had been loaned to Aunty Harding, because she knew English. It was impossible not to believe that the Maharajah already knew more than the facts about Lynn's break with her aunt. The maid left the bedroom. The Maharajah sat by the veranda outside, staring past the edge of the sun blind into the garden. There was hardly a sound except the purring of the two electric fans.

Meanwhile she smoked a cigarette and watched the Maharajah, who seemed to Lynn to be considering, not what to say, but how to say what was crowding her thoughts.

"Maharajah dear, I wish you wouldn't feel so upset."

"Now you must despise us."

"Please! I don't. To go away leaving you thinking anything as untrue as that would be dreadful. I am not even angry with Rundhia."

"I am more than angry with him," said the Maharajah. "I am ashamed Lynn, is it true—it has been told to me—that Mrs. Harding saw Rundhia kiss you in the garden?"

"Yes. That, too, was my fault. I could have prevented it. I knew Aunty was looking. I did it to annoy her."

"Not because you like Rundhia?"

"Oh, I like him. He is the handsomest thing I have ever seen, and amusing. I was playing with fire, I know that."

The Maharajah's worried face relaxed into a wise smile. "My dear, you don't know Rundhia if you think he won't try it again! Unless—in it true—it has been told to me—that Mrs. Harding has decided not to stay here any longer!"

"First train, and first steamer for home," Lynn answered. "Marching orders. At the moment, it hurts her to move and she can't keep food down. But the doctor can probably fix that. And she's brave. She has an iron will. She told me to pack my things."

"And will you do it?"
What in the world else can I do? I haven't a sous marquis to my name. Aunty gives me pocket money—no more."

The Maharajah smiled: "Yes. Lack of money can make even Rundhia obey. But it is a limited power. It can be broken."

"So I think. But it remains to be seen," Lynn answered.

"You are of age? You don't look it, but you are, are you not? If I invite you to remain in the palace as my guest, will you accept?"

"How can I?"
It would give me very great pleasure to provide you with more than pocket money. I can easily invent a salaried position. You have been such a comfort, such a joy to me, that your companionship would more than justify a requisition on His Highness my husband's exchequer. Is it true—it has been told to me—that Mrs. Harding threatened to—my informant did not clearly understand—I think the word was inherit?"

"Aunty has threatened that several times. Today I took her at her word," Lynn answered. "She will pay my fare home. After that, I go on my own way—earn a living. It was final."

"Can you legally be left without money?"
I suppose so."

"You say you will earn a living. How? What can you do?"
I don't know yet."

"For such a beautiful girl as you there is always marriage to look forward to. Is Mrs. Harding not afraid of what people may say if she should leave you penniless until you marry?"

"She isn't afraid of people. Other people are afraid of her. She will simply say I was impossible. But I won't accept another cent from her. Maharajah dear, you can't guess. Perhaps I'm as ungrateful and bad as she says. But I know what I have had to endure. No more humiliation from Aunty Hard!

"Lynn darling, say nothing until you have thought. You haven't had time to think. And you are naturally prejudiced at the moment, even though you are so magnanimous and don't admit it. A greater magnanimity than yours I have seldom heard of. Lynn, the offer of a throne is not contemptible. Shall I write a note to Mrs. Harding saying you have accepted my invitation to stay with us?"

"Better let me tell her that," said Lynn. "Aunty would blow up. She isn't one bit pleasant when she's angry. Say you've invited me. How would that be?"

The Maharajah bleated like an old sheep. A lawyer in a black alpaca frock coat droned interminable arguments. Documents were produced. Expert witnesses committed artfully evasive perjury. Norwood sat at the foot of the long table, leaned, listened, and made endless notes.

They weren't half through by lunch-time. They gave him fifteen in the palace, all by himself, in a silent room, where a clock ticked as loud as a clock against plate and he caught himself eating in time to the hypnotic beat, thinking of diamonds. Curried mutton and rice. White rice and soda. Sweet cakes. Fruit. Coffee. A cigar. And then back to the Council room to listen to more arguments that were interrupted by the arrival of Rundhia's Bengali physician, shepherding a servant who carried a big blue goblet on a plate.

The Maharajah swallowed his tonic and immediately became less nervous. Then he asked, in English, presumably for Norwood's benefit:

"How is Mrs. Harding?"

Norwood cared less than nothing about Mrs. Harding's feelings at the moment, but he couldn't help hearing the doctor's answer.

"She is not well. But I cannot persuade her to take medicine. She is petulant—very."

The Maharajah tried to seem incredulous of any lady's petulance: "Convey my salutations."

Norwood managed to escape from the conference soon after that. He was away on the hours before the sun rose. He cantered to the Residency, where he had to wait in the office an exasperating fifteen minutes, until the Resident could be awakened from his afternoon snooze and could get tubbed and come downstairs.

"May I see you alone, sir?"

The Resident nodded. He didn't appear to enjoy the prospect. They went into the darkened library, and Norwood sat in the same chair that Rundhia had occupied. He laid the black paper package of diamonds on the table:

"Take a look at those, sir. I want to turn them over to you. I would like to get a receipt, and to make a statement in writing."

The Resident opened the envelope and poured the diamonds into his hand. He made a wry face and poured them back again:

"Nine?"

"I haven't counted them."

"They look valuable. Where did you get them?"

"I am not absolutely certain. I think they must have been slipped into my pocket, early this morning, by one of the unofficial representatives of the temple authorities, who met me by appointment, near the waterfall."

"What were you doing?"

"Inviting myself for a visit of inspection of the mine. They met me to discuss it."

"And you say they dropped these in your pocket?"

"I believe so. It's a pretty obvious attempt to bribe me to write a report in their favor."

"But they said nothing? Not even a hint?"

"One of them, I remember, did say he hoped my judgment wouldn't be affected by worthless arguments. He rather dwelt on the word worthless, but it made no special impression on me at the time."

"Very well, Captain Norwood, I will take your statement." The Resident glanced at his watch. "You're rather late with it. There seems to me to be needed some explanation when you called this morning."

"I didn't know, at that time, that I had them in my pocket."

The Resident's face was expressionless: "You had better be sure to include that in your statement. It's credible, of course, in view of your record. But people might draw inferences. Don't you think so?"

"You suggest, sir?"

"Nothing. I am offering advice. It might be inferred that you accepted these diamonds and said nothing about them until you learned, let us say at the palace, that someone knew about it; and that then you hurried to me in a rather belated attempt to establish innocence. I am simply pointing out to you what might be inferred if you are not particularly careful."

Norwood stared at the package of diamonds. He thought a minute. Then he looked straight at the Resident's eyes and spoke quite calmly:

"You appear to me to be hinting. Had you heard about these before I brought them to you?"

"Yes."

"Who was your informant?"

"It was confidential."

"You suspect me of having accepted a bribe?"

"I reserve my opinion."

"Very well, sir, you admit that someone accused me. I want the name of the informant. Otherwise I demand my arrest and a court martial."

"Keep your temper. You have already been reported to me for punching someone's nose."

"Where?"

"My informant's nose was bleeding."

"Very well, who was he? I have punched no one's nose. Someone has been lying to you, about me. Surely I have the right to know who he is."

"Captain Norwood, on your word of honor, are you telling the truth?"

"Yes."

"Well, perhaps I was just too. Perhaps I inferred it. I forgot the exact words. Prince Rundhia certainly intended me to eat sand that you had made him nose bleed."

"Oh. So it was Rundhia. I wonder how the devil Rundhia knew I had those diamonds."

"Well, did you call on Miss Harding this morning?"

Norwood stared. He looked almost as if he had been punched in the jaw.

"Yes," he said, after a moment. "I called on Mrs. Harding to take her a bottle of fresh iodine. Miss Harding saw the diamonds when they fell from my pocket."

"Is it true that you have been paying her a lot of attention?"

"No."

"You have not had words with Rundhia about her?"

"Yes. I did tell Rundhia, last night after midnight, that if anything should happen to Lynn Harding, I would hold him answerable."

"Why should you have said that?"

"Because I like her. I suspected Rundhia's intentions."

"Are you sure she is nice? Why should she have told Rundhia?"

"I don't believe she did. Rundhia lied, if you ask me. Perhaps a servant told him."

"Just a moment, sir. This occurs to me. Is Rundhia exactly in good standing?"

"No. Confidentially, speaking off the record, I took a recent occasion to warn him that one more indiscretion might endanger his succession to the throne."

"I suppose," said Norwood, "it would be a great deal easier, and would cause a lot less trouble, to veto him now than to have to dispose of him later on, after he had come to the throne."

"Why, yes, certainly. Even the right of veto isn't anything we like to exercise. To depose a ruling prince, after once having recognized his right to the throne—well, it has been done. But it isn't good policy, if it can be avoided. You see, the alternative to Rundhia is Jodha, who is an invalid and likely to be childless. We might be accused of deposing Rundhia in order to grab Kadur. No. If Rundhia should succeed to the throne, his position would be fairly secure."

Norwood thought a minute. "If Rundhia should be planning a coup of some kind, don't you think he'd be cunning enough to kick up a smoke screen?"

"Rundhia is more impetuous than cunning," the Resident answered.

Norwood thought again, scowling, for half a minute. Then:

"Do you think he's sufficiently impetuous to try to kill several birds with one stone?"

"He might be. He's an impatient fellow—not at all good at waiting for what he makes up his mind that he wants."

"If he could prejudice the case against the priests, by accusing them of having bribed me. And if he could break me for taking a bribe. And break you for knowing about it but doing nothing—there would be a scandal that might distract attention from whatever else he might be doing at the moment."

"I concede that," said the Resident. "But if I report you as charged with having accepted a bribe, can you disprove it? If you could identify the Brahmin who, you say, put those diamonds into your pocket without your knowledge, he would say on the witness stand that you had demanded a bribe, and that he saw some unknown person hand it to you. How can you prove you didn't know those diamonds were in your pocket? Can you?"

"No," said Norwood.

"Stay away from the palace. Better wait until Rundhia makes the first move."

"You don't believe in taking bulls by the horns."

"Norwood, I had a premonition the moment you arrived, that that red hair of yours would set fire to things. We're either you or Rundhia. It breaks you, if he can make his accusations good. Witnesses come cheap in Kadur. He could hire them by the dozen. But if he fails to make it good, I think I can guarantee you it shall break him."

"Hardly fair to me, is it, to compel me to sit still and be shot at?"

"What do you suggest?"

"First, I'll write that statement. Then I'd like to have a talk with Miss Lynn Harding."

OXFORD COUNTY UNITED PARISH

The Easter weather in the United Parish was not different from that all through the East. Yet the services were held as scheduled. In the morning, at East Stoneham, there was held a Sunrise Service, attended by a few of the people of that Church. The morning service at East Stoneham was in charge of the girls of the High School Class of the Sunday School. They were assisted by some of the other Sunday School Classes. There was to be found the largest attendance of the day, but they were not very much ahead of Center Lovell, for the service there, conducted by Rev. Willard Bicket, was very well supported, in spite of the effects of the storm. At North Waterford music was furnished by a ladies' choir, and greatly added to the Easter Service. Following the morning service there were special exercises given by the Sunday School. A program was also given by the Waterford Sunday School before the morning worship.

In the afternoon the Annual Voter Communion Service was held at Waterford. The East Stoneham Choir united with the Waterford Choir to provide special music. At this service four were received into the membership of the Churches of the Parish. These were: George Allen of East Stoneham; Mrs. Edith Brown and Mrs. Anne Littlefield of North Waterford; and Esther Price of Waterford.

Through the gifts of some of the friends of the Parish it was possible to distribute lilies to those who have suffered loss since last
